Community College of Delaware County
To Start Operation on September 25

David McCracken of 331 Copley Rd., Upper Darby, is among the first group of students admitted to the Community College of Delaware County, according to a recent announcement from Dr. Walton Hill, Director of Admissions for the College. McCracken graduated from Upper Darby High School in 1962 and will enroll as a regular student in the Liberal Arts program.

The Community College will start its first year of operation on September 25, 1967, in the Ridley High School, Morton Ave., Folson. Applications for admission, which may be obtained from the Office of Admissions temporarily located at 12-B South Ave., Media, will be accepted until September 20.

Prospective students may apply for a full-time or part-time program. For residents of sponsoring school districts the tuition is $165 per semester for full-time students and $44 per credit hour for part-time students.

Classes will be conducted between 4:30 and 10:30 p.m. Mondays through Fridays. Each class will be fifty minutes in length, with a five-minute recess between sessions.

Programs will be in three major categories: College parallel transfer programs, two-year career oriented programs and developmental programs for special students.

The college parallel curricula will include: Business Education, Elementary Education, Engineering, Journalism, Liberal Arts, Library Science, Pharmacy, Pre-Dentistry, Pre-Law, Pre-Medicine, Pre-Veterinary, Bilingual, Legal, Medical and Technical.

Basic courses in English and Mathematics will be offered for students who require additional preparation prior to admission to either the transfer or two-year courses.

Detailed information on courses and admissions may be obtained from the Office of Admissions, 565-2977.
