Linda Williams meets with Eugene Kray, her Business Administration professor, in the library of the Community College at Ridley High School. Kray also serves half time as Administrative Assistant to the President of the College.

Community College Opens; Enrolls Over 300 Students

The Community College of Delaware County — the NIM School District is one of the open...s opened on September 25, from the Delaware Co. Court's decision. The appeal before the Supreme Court from the Delaware Co. Court's decision in the tax payers' suit brought against the school soon after it was established, was heard on September 26, the day after the college opened.

Eleven full time faculty members have been appointed, including three full time and one part-time administrators. An addition at thirteen faculty members are employed part-time. As previously announced, the College is offering full programs in the two-year transfer category, as well as two-year career oriented programs, including business, English and mathematics for those who need more work prior to beginning their full time college level program.

Linda Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Williams, and granddaughter of Lewis "Pop" and Helen Williams, is one of the local students attending the College who lives in the Rose Tree Media School District. "Pop" retired last year after working for thirty-six years in the District.

Linda is a 1967 graduate of Penncrest, where she took the Business Education course. She found a job after graduation in one of the local banks where she operated a business machine. However, Linda says she soon realized that "If I get a little more education, I could get a better job," and she enrolled in the Business Administration course at the College.

Her program this year includes Introduction to Business Administration, Public Speaking, Mathematics and English. Linda commented, "I find the courses very interesting. I like them a lot."

Pre-School Eye Tests

Set For Nov. 11 at 11

An eye screening test for pre-school children will be held on November 11 between 9:30 a.m. and twelve noon in the Indian Lane Junior High School. These tests are designed to discover amblyopia — a condition in which one eye is dominant in time to correct the problem before the child enters school. This is a special project of the Aston-Middletown Jaycees, in association with the Penna. Assn. for the Blind. No charge is made for this service.
